

Professional entertainers make fun a class act

Langrish

From a theatrical trunk to a story box, children from Langrish School discovered the secrets of live theatre and the skills of a creative story teller during the last week of term. The Scats theatre company bought their theatrical skills to the school with Gerry Owen and Paul artifacts and musical instruments to bring a session of story telling to life in front of a delighted young audience.
