Michael O'Leary - The Storyteller

Who can forget his spell-binding tales? He clearly prefers the spoken word to the written word – because, in his e-mail, Michael describes himself very briefly and simply as “very communicative and interactive, using musical instruments and strange objects such as thingumajigs, wotnots, hoojamaflops, and wosnames ! Can be seen wearily hauling around a storybox and looking for a free drink!”

spells that kept them quiet as mice.

What a shame that you can't just buy a bottle of his magic to take home with you!”

For his last visit to Overton, he was described as “a story-telling Pied Piper, entrancing children of all ages! Armed with just a box to sit on, and a blanket for the children, he wove
